

RENEWABLES

The energy transition requires solar and wind electricity to be 60% of mix by 2050, which needs sizeable storage to manage intermittency.

Heat Vault can create vast storage as heat by utilising waste electricity and waste heat during periods of excess or at low cost in off peak hours, storing it for days to years and supplying it to suit demand for heat or electricity. Its use can eliminate curtailment.